The Fund return was -0.8% for February, below the broader market index (95% S&P global infrastructure and 5% cash) which was +0.6%. Relative Fund performance was hurt by our overweight in water, underweight in pipelines, European electricity exposures, and helped by US railways.

Top portfolio performers were US railways Norfolk Southern (+8.3%) and CSX (+6.6%), which benefited from investor activism. Spanish airports company Aena (+6.6%) was also strong.

The weakest portfolio performers were European energy and renewables company RWE (-9.7%), and European tower companies Inwit (-9.0%) and Cellnex (-7.0%). Our largest holding, UK water company Pennon, (-6.3%) was also weak, although we see positive supportive catalysts for the name throughout the year.

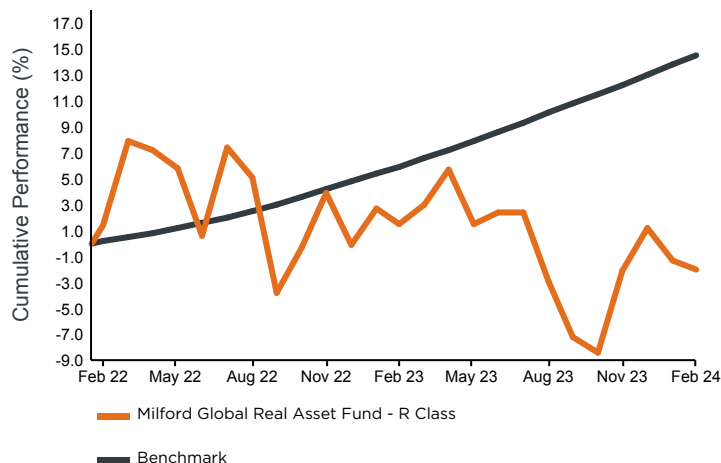

During the month we made several small changes to Fund positioning.

Global markets were positive in February, with a supportive reporting season (notably Nvidia) driving a market rally around the much-loved AI theme. Inflation data and Fed commentary were broadly supportive, however, the US 10-year sovereign yield closed higher for the month at 4.2%.

The S&P 500 total return index was up 5.2% for the month. The US utility index (UTY) was +0.8% for the month.

We continue to see value in many areas of the global real assets sector, even allowing for higher interest rates, but we are currently holding cash at around 9% to allow us to exploit opportunities should we see volatility throughout the year.
